BRYN MAWR WOMEN STUDY FIRE PREVENTION IN MILLS

STOTESBURYS OFFER HOMES FOR DEFENSE

Wife of Financier Willing to Care for 200 Wounded in Event of War

One of Philadelphia's magnificent mansions and the summer home of Mr. and Mrs. Stotesbury as well will become hospitals accommodating at least 200 patients in case the United States is plunged into war.

This became known today, when Mrs. Stotesbury offered both her palatial home at the corner of Walnut and 20th streets and her home in the country for hospital purposes, and at the same time offered to pay all bills incurred in the care of at least 200 patients.

She signified her intention and willingness to do these things as the direct result of the work of the Pennsylvania Women's Division for National Preparedness. In a letter to the State president, George W. Childs Drexel, she expresses deep interest in the movement and her promise for hearty co-operation.

The letter to Mrs. Drexel follows: Dear Mrs. Drexel: I am indeed interested in the magnificent work which you have undertaken, and will do everything in my power to help you. I will gladly join a unit, and would choose as my hospital in a unit and one in the country. I think I could safely undertake the responsibility so put me down for that, and whatever expense it will entail. I would rather undertake indoor duties than run a motor.

I cannot tell you, dear Mrs. Drexel, how much I admire and respect you for the courage and ability with which you have undertaken this remarkable work. No one is better suited to make the movement a success. Believe me, with warm congratulations and best wishes.

Sincerely yours, EVA STOTESBURY.

The offer of Mrs. Stotesbury shows the wonderful spirit of co-operation which marks the feeling of the women of Philadelphia in pushing the Pennsylvania Women's Division for National Preparedness. Her offer of her home as a hospital for the war is a noble contribution to the movement.

FIRST WOMAN NAMED UNDER NEW CITY RULE

SAYS MUM'S THE WORD

Miss Catherine Denny, Secretary to Director Datesman, Knows, but Shuns Politics. Believes in Suffrage

IS 'WOMAN FOR THE JOB' The keynote of efficiency that seems to have been struck in the appointment of the man who forms the personnel of the Department of Public Works under the new administration extends also to its women assistants, and especially to Miss Catherine Denny, who will act in the capacity of confidential stenographer to the new Director, George B. Datesman.

Miss Denny has been of her as a clear asset to the department. Yesterday found her striving to get her bearings in the new office at a strange desk among new associates. Every conscientious effort at work, however, was punctuated by the hearty handshakes of her friends and former co-workers, who dropped in to extend their congratulations for her new appointment.

It is safe to say that no hostess at an afternoon tea ever was called upon to extend her hand in greeting more often than this young woman during office hours yesterday.

An interview with Miss Denny will convince even the mildly observing that she is, to use the present day vernacular, the 'woman for the job.' Well poised, deliberate and careful in her phrasing, well versed in all the technicalities of the work of the department, of mature judgment, keen as a steel trap and 'mum' on questions that strictly concern departmental affairs, it is safe to assume that the confidential stenographic and of Mr. Datesman's office is a job well suited to her. Miss Denny's business career has been such that she has had ample opportunity to get a pretty thorough idea of the intricacies of office work. Not that I believe women would stand in the same, should they be enfranchised.

Quizzed about it she replied, 'I have seen just enough of politics to feel satisfied to stay out of it. Not that I believe women shouldn't have the vote. I am a believer in limited suffrage; a voice in the government for women who hold property. Why shouldn't a woman be entitled to have something to say about the way her tax money is spent?'

Probably Miss Denny confessed to the most remarkable hobby ever pursued by a member of the fair sex—a study of higher mathematics. Problems in geometry, trigonometry, and advanced algebra have become child's play to her, and she is just about to swoop down on the complexities of calculus. Miss Denny's now position will yield her a salary of $1200 annually. She is the first woman to receive an appointment under the new administration.
